To our parents: If only they could know.

"Like leaves on trees
The race of man is found,
Now green in youth,
Now withering on the ground:
Another race
The following spring supplies:
They fall successive,
And successive rise:
So generations
in their course decay;
So flourish these
When those have passed away."

Pope's Translation of Homer's Iliad.

Preface

by Karen Torbron Ristic

One of my earliest recollections of life in the small central California city of Santa Maria is that of meeting some strangers who had travelled from Texas to visit my parents. I was told that the girl, who was about five years younger than I, was my cousin. At that time, she shared my passion for horses and I wanted her to stay and be not only my cousin but my friend. I knew of no other relatives either living within travelling distance or living at all. And when I asked my mother about any relatives, I was told not to ask about those things, that my mother had no brothers or sisters.

In November, 1971, my parents were about to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. I decided to draw up a family tree chart representing both my mother's and father's ancestors. My father, at age 72, had difficulty remembering people and events and my mother constantly changed the fact that she had brothers and sisters, just as she had done throughout my life. Yet, somehow we managed to get together a somewhat accurate chart depicting their heritage. My mother had no idea that this "mystery" of her family background that she did not want to share with me only inspired me to pursue the "truth" with increasing fervor.

On a vacation to Washington, D.C. the following year, we happened by the National Archives, went in, and decided to look at the 1900 Census. There we found my father in Texas at age two. What an exciting event! On our way back to California, we stopped by Detroit, Michigan to share the information with my sister; thus began our synergistic passion among my sister, husband, and myself for genealogy which we have enjoyed over the past twenty years.

For many years, as a labor of love and of family interest, we have gathered genealogical information. Finally as these pieces of information grew in number and opportunity permitted and inclination urged, these notes and files took form and the present volume is the result. Much information has been compiled from family records, but for the most part, from long and painstaking research into libraries, and state and county records. Correspondence with representatives of the family has made it possible to complete their lines. It has also provided us with many new friends.

The result is this book, and what a magnificent achievement it is! It presents a pageant of over 400 years in the life of a family with such as an obscure name (and often misspelled) as Torbron. We have tried to clearly tell with complete intellectual honesty and with all the thousands of details of names and places and dates carefully authenticated.

Some of us will be most interested in the early ancestors with beginnings in Scotland and England; some in the family history in the context of events occurring at the time; some in the specific details about certain persons and their descendants; some will want to pursue more information from the many data records we have itemized and some in finding out about the new branches that are beginning to flourish. We continually find both the process and the product fascinating. Together we have brought patience, enthusiasm, imagination, and tireless effort to the task, and the result is, in my opinion, a real work of creative scholarship.

Although this book gives the bare bones of the family chronicle, I think that everyone who participated in the story recorded here can be proud. Except for the early generations, there are few details given about private lives, careers, and special events. But one does get a sense of a family whose members are always active in the life of their times. Whatever movement was afoot - pioneering in Scotland, coming to America and settling in many parts of the country, homesteading in California, raising large families, sending children to college when this was a rare thing, having women work in business, own property, fighting in wars, - members of our family were in the thick of it.

If those members of the family into whose hands this volume may come, shall find in it something of interest and of value, the writers will feel amply repaid for the time and labor expended.

I am exceedingly grateful to both my husband, Raymond Peter Ristic, and my sister, Dorothy Marie Torbron Flanagan for their constant research, their valuable criticisms, and their never-failing interest throughout the work.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1

Recording Our Family History: A Personal Passion

The reasons why people write up family histories and genealogies are varied, but not very hard to imagine. Family pride, simple curiosity, an antiquarian's interest in archives, a gesture of gratitude toward one's forebears for endowments received, the historian's urge to find out what really took place in the past, the snobbish need to prove one's pedigree superior to those of others, a need to find one's place in the continuity of history; these probably are the major ones.

Of all these reasons, one might imagine that family pride and a sense of historic continuity would have inspired this Torbron saga. We are, after all, a small family, still concentrated in two or three geographical areas of the country - by and large; still keeping in touch with one another - to some extent. The idea of passing along the value of these connections to the children (particularly if it could be shown that there were some distinguished people in our lineage), as well as telling them something about their background to give them identity bearings, are surely commendable goals: good, sound, Scotch-Irish reasons for writing a family history.

We must admit that none of these reasons or any of the others given, started us on this adventure. We began our journey in search of a solution to a mystery: a mystery our mother had unwittingly inspired. Who really was her family and where did they come from? The answers, of course, lie within these pages.

Our searches for information have been full of surprises, discoveries, and much controversy within our family. They have also brought many disappointments and baffling problems, and many tangles to be straightened out. Never the less, it continuously proves to be such an elusive and fascinating subject that we have been led on and on, finally becoming firmly held in the bonds of its peculiar attraction. Like many other interesting subjects, the more meager and incomplete the material, the more fascinating the quest becomes. In the search for some ancestral line, one small bit of data or tradition may often be a clue to something else, so that little by little the obscure points are revealed, and in the end our patience and perseverance are richly rewarded. Putting two pieces of a puzzle together creating a marvelous "Aha!" for us is an incomparable emotion.

The work of compiling this genealogy was undertaken with the object of drawing together valuable old records and photographs of the family and preserving them in a compact and enduring form which would be easily accessible to members of the family and others who might be interested. At the same time we thought it advisable to collect for posterity all available records of the present generations, lest they might become lost or rendered obscure by the passing of years.

Such a purpose, however, could not have been accomplished alone and unaided. It was made possible only by the generous and untiring cooperation of other members of the family. In addition to the help which they have rendered by contributing records and photographs particularly recent information of value, their interest and encouragement have made it possible to "carry on" in times of discouragement and to bring the work finally to a conclusion, albeit a temporary conclusion.

The first thing to be said about the result is that we had not the slightest notion of the amount of work which would be required nor the amount of time which would be consumed. We began knowing so little about genealogy. It can be fairly said that we have devoted much time to this work. We have spent many hours in libraries and in other research areas. We have engaged in voluminous correspondence with individuals throughout the entire United States. We have made field trips to abandoned cemeteries, old churches and dusty basements in court houses. We have engaged the services of various genealogists. We have searched attics and trunks and have cajoled relatives into doing the same thing, producing results that we could not even have guessed at; and we have spent many hours in front of the computer, tirelessly entering and editing information..

We have found this effort to be both tedious and exciting, frustrating and rewarding, satisfying and disappointing.

Searching for bare-bones dates of births and deaths is tedious; seeing flesh put upon these bones is thoroughly exciting. Frustrations arise at times from inability to obtain critical information. The successful capture of elusive information, on the other hand, is altogether rewarding. Overall, the work has been satisfying, because we have done the best we could; but there is a considerable amount of disappointment when the inevitable point arrives when a decision has to be made that research must stop and writing begin.

These have been years of learning for us. While we have not become professional genealogists, we have learned that genealogy must be more precise than history; and we have also learned that the study of genealogy is a continuing process, even within one family, which must be temporarily terminated at some point if publication is intended.

We have understood that perfection is not to be achieved. Nevertheless, we can say that, in our judgment, this is a superb book, in terms of fidelity, completeness, accuracy, and interest.

Regrettably some family lines were not as complete and some facts have not been as fully developed as we would have liked. Nevertheless, the entire undertaking has been great fun and, most certainly, a labor of love.

CHAPTER 2

The Problem of Authenticity

The foundation, the rock, upon which all family genealogies and histories are built, is what are called "primary documentary sources." These include official records of established fact: birth registrations, marriage records, certifications of death found in city, town or county archives, tax lists, land deeds and probate records in county recorders' offices, naturalization papers, military service and pension records, and homestead applications that are found in national depositories, to name just a few.

Then there are the private secondary source documents, such as copies of land deed certificates, marriage licenses, cemetery inscriptions, diaries, family letters, account books: all of which help locate the official documents and even serve, as a last resort, as the primary documents themselves.

Documentary source records establish the authentic events that occur in the parade of history; they serve as the solid coat hooks upon which the loose garments of verbal recollections can properly be hung. Most important, they are records that are available - somewhere - if one only has the time and patience to search them out.

With no reliable official or semi-documentary material to rely upon, oral testimony becomes crucial as a source of information. By listening to stories told by the members of the family, we could pick up time relationships, name relationships, dates that can be corroborated, and a sequence of events from which a probable chronology could be constructed.

Listening to and recording these verbal accounts turned out to be the most fascinating, and frustrating, part of our entire research. It was fascinating because of what we learned about relatives we had never known - and about relatives whom we had known all our lives but, as revealed, never really knew at all.

The frustrating part lay in the interpretation of what we heard. Unlike the historian who can consider the problem of evaluation as purely academic, we had to make our value judgments against the backdrop of personal knowledge and interest in the people with whom we spoke.

Our interviews were with people who could not be regarded as primary sources of our European heritage. Most of the older European-born relatives who might have given detailed first-hand accounts have long since died. Some, in fact, had difficulty with accurate recall on any subject; while others, blessed with fertile imaginations filled in the blank spots of their memories with off-the-cuff improvisations. We wished we had begun our investigations much earlier in our lives.

Some of the information received, particularly with regard to relationships could not be validated such as recollections by people of what they had been told by their parents or family. The information, at best, was only once removed from the source; more usually, it was twice removed from the original source ("My mother said that her mother once told her...."). Since such hearsay evidence was often all we could get in piecing together the lives of the last three generations, the possibility of major errors of fact in those instances must be recognized.

The obvious danger in gathering information from children about their deceased parents is, of course, their understandable and human wish to have their parents appear in as favorable a light as possible. For the most part, these subjective judgments were unimportant as far as the record was concerned. But when they intruded on the matter of dates, particularly birth dates, then they hindered, rather than helped, the discovery of the truth.

How does one distinguish factual truth from unintentional coloring of the truth through unconscious bias, or memory weakness - or simply through error? And suppose the narrator was absolutely truthful, but his source (his own parent, perhaps) had reason to shade the truth a little when telling the story originally? And if various members of one family disagree on a set of facts, who to believe? The oldest? The one who seems to have the best power of recall? The one who may have spent more time at home and became the closest confidant of the mother?

And here's another poser: What is a "true" date? In our case, we are not dealing with historically important people about whom a case can be built for absolute factual fidelity. After all, the "facts" we're dealing with are, for the most part, tenuous at best. Suppose a child's name was once recorded in a book but not carefully examined as is the case with immigrants saying their name to the immigration official to spell or the census taker at the door. Years later the original notation was discovered and the discrepancy found out. At this point, what is the correct spelling of the name? In other words, does usage ever establish truth? A nice puzzler: one that we have met many times.

In general, we found that the memory of a single person is, by itself, not too reliable for recreating the past. Only by comparing the recollections of many people and the examination of many documents could we arrive at an approximation of the truth. For memory has peculiar lapses: a month, a year, or even a single episode is blocked out for no apparent reason, though events that took place before or afterwards are clearly recalled. Strange juxtapositions take place: a certain episode, correct in itself, becomes attached to the wrong person, or put in the wrong locale, or even attributed to the wrong generation!

To make matters worse, the human mind seems to balk at illogical breaks in what seems to be a plausible pattern. Any recollection that seems out of place is unwittingly, subtly, rearranged so that it fits into the picture. Before long, the memory changes an incident from "what might possibly have happened" to a firm "this is what really did happen." The impartial recorder must always be alert to this unconscious tendency.

On the other hand, memory sometimes is unexpectedly illuminating. Sometimes a recollection springs forth that is the single clue needed to solve a puzzle in a relationship or a sequence of events that until then never seemed to make sense.

The greatest problem we had throughout all our research on the family's past history was to keep uppermost in our mind the need to be as honest as possible. Sometimes our sources had the tendency to "forgetting to mention" unpleasant episodes of the past they felt had best be forgotten. There are just too many people who remember the facts, and too many contingencies that may rest on that one "unmentionable" incident. Try changing one fact and a whole chain reaction of alterations must take place - until eventually such huge falsifications appear that the whole made-up story falls apart. This is one reason we so painstakingly documented and cited our sources of information.

And besides, how do we know what our grandchildren or great-grandchildren will want to know about the family? While we may want to change the past to what we feel ought to have happened, our prejudices may not be shared by the later generations. In fact, the future generations may want to know the very things we think ought to be deleted. After all, this is why we started in the first place! Considering the way standards change from one generation to the next, it is safest to retreat to the only standard that seems to remain constant: the truth insofar as it can be discovered. In the long run, it can hurt no one. And this is the least we can do for our descendants for whom, in large part, this family history is written.

A Reader's Checklist: How To Use This Book

Besides the preliminary material and the three introductory chapters, there are five major sections of this book: 1) the family charts, 2) the individual histories with some historical and personal backdrops, 3) the family data records, 4) the allied families section, and 5) the family history in context. In this chapter, we'll explain what is in each section and try to anticipate problems that may arise before they do.

SECTION TWO: THE FAMILY CHARTS

This section contains the family trees of the main stems of our family. Each family is grouped separately. To avoid huge, unmanageable foldout charts, we've broken up the charts into different segments. A "continuation indicator" (a small circled number that starts or ends a sequence) shows where the family line continues onto or from some other chart. The note above or below each circled number indicates where the ancestral line continues on to or from more descendants which are given on another chart. If there is no continuation number, this indicates that the family line starts or stops there as far as our information is verified. The index contains all family names from Section Three: Individual Histories and Section Five: Allied Families, with the chart numbers enclosed in brackets where the individual can be located.

On each chart, the squares represent males and the circles represent females. Below each name in the Family Chart section is an alpha-numeric code number, the key to the information in the Individual History section. In most instances husband and wife have the same numbers; the wife takes on the code number of the husband. Broken lines connecting the same names indicate other marriages. Solid lines connecting a male and female indicate a legal marriage. Lines coming down from this line indicate children born of the union unless otherwise indicated. Bolded circles, squares, and lines indicate our direct lineage.

SECTION THREE: THE INDIVIDUAL HISTORIES

This section details the pertinent vital statistics for each individual named on the family trees. Again, families are grouped together within each branch. The names are listed by generation, and each name is assigned an alpha-numeric code. The first two letters of the code number stands for the family branch. The numbers after the letters are in no particular order. The index lists these code numbers by the individual's name. Because there were so many instances of people with the same first and last names, it became necessary to differentiate them with dashes and numbers after their first names. There are also some names listed in the Individual History Section and Allied Families Section that do not appear in the Family Charts Section; space just did not allow us to chart everybody.

The head of each family appears first with the names of parents in parentheses then the facts of birth, marriage, death and other events in chronological order. Where birth parents are yet to be discovered by us, they are marked "unknown" in the parentheses. Names that are bolded and underlined indicate that the name is carried forward to the next generation, and is a direct ancestor, becoming in turn the head of the family of the next generation. With each individual are grouped the code numbers of his/her children found in a succeeding generation

Some Abbreviations and Terms

A number (not many) of general abbreviations are used in this section. These are:

pl. place
nee "born," referring to a woman (usually her maiden name)
ne "born," referring to a man (usually the name he changed)

In addition to these abbreviations, there is another term that needs to be explained more fully:

ca (meaning "around" or "approximated"). This abbreviation is usually associated with a date and represents a calculated guess, based on the consideration of such related factors as the age of contemporaries, the known ages of the children, historical events that are relevant, as well as recollections of descendants. When associated with a date, the abbreviation is usually just an arithmetic computation. For example, when a person' birthday and date of his death are both known, his age at his death can be and is deduced.

Some Arrangement Peculiarities

You'll come across some odd arrangements. Here are some of them.

1. Each person is listed with his brothers and sisters as close to chronological order as possible. However, detailed information about any woman in the family who married another person in the family is usually found under the name of her spouse. Although women should be known in their own right, women in the past were usually known by their husbands' last names.
2. In all cases, information obtained correlates with dates, except when the date is not available. The location of the event is also listed, first by state, then county, and then city. The common and larger cities often are not listed with their counties. The letters and numbers at the end of the description refer to a data record from which the information was obtained; these data records are contained in Section Four. Parents are listed in parentheses after the word "Birth." Again, if parents' names are not known to us, the word, "unknown" appears in these parentheses.
3. The direct descendants are underlined and in bold print.
4. We've tried to be meticulous in reproducing exactly all names, dates, namesake references, and sources, as given to us. We sincerely hope there are no glaring errors.

SECTION FOUR: DATA RECORDS

In doing research over the past fifteen years, we have visited places and obtained data that we already had. To avoid this duplication and to provide the reader with resources, we have included the family data records from which we have obtained the information. This has helped us and will continue to help us (and the reader) review the information and return to it for additional information or confirmation of the stated information.

The spelling of a name in this section is as it is found in the documents, which may or may not be spelled the same as the name in Section Three: The Individual Histories. Any questions or additional information the reader has will be gladly received at Post Office Box 1644, West Covina, CA 91793-1644.

SECTION FIVE: ALLIED FAMILIES

This section contains information on families related to the authors' lines through marriage. These families are: The Flanagan/Kiviniemi Families, the Leyva/Moss Families, and the Ristic/Zografos Families. Each of these families have family charts and data records associated with them.

SECTION SIX: FAMILY HISTORY IN CONTEXT

This is a running narrative of the rise, movement, and status of our families in the context of the historical events and places where they have lived since before the arrival of the Mayflower to present day. This chronology is not as documentary as the information in section two and is written in a free-style manner. Wherever there were a number of historical events during the event of our ancestor, we simply chose one and let it go at that; in most cases, we went along with the most interesting historical information we had obtained. The real purpose of this section is to help us understand the environment in which our ancestors had lived.

SECTION SEVEN: PERSONAL NAME INDEX

The Personal Name Index contains every name mentioned in Section Three: Individual Histories and Section Five: Allied Families. It contains every name in alphabetical order with code numbers after the first name, chart numbers after the semicolon, and page numbers.

CHAPTER 8

The Torbron Family

If one were to look at the parish registers in the county of Wigton, Scotland in the eighteenth and early ninteenth centuries, one would find hundreds of families that were spelled like Torbron: Thorburn, Torburn, Torbin, Torborn, Torbran, Thorburn, and Tarbon. In fact, one could find Torbrons marrying Torbrons. Thorburn comes from the Old English personal name Thurbrand. We have often been told it is a Scotch-Irish name meaning "brown mountain." In any case, the name appears on the list of parishoners of Glenluce, Scotland on the fifteenth day of October 1684. All of the Torbrons born in America are spelled "Torbron."

We have searched for many years for the burial site of William-2 Torbron and to this day this remains an important mystery to be solved. His wife, Lucy Torbron, is buried in South Dover Cemetery in Lenawee County, but his burial site is nowhere to be found. We have received no information on his death for the years 1872 to 1874 from the state of Michigan.

Mr. Torbron is a devoted and consistent communicant of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and endeavors, by a blameless life, to set an example that will benefit the rising gereration. Mr. Torbron belongs to Clayton Lodge, F. & A. M. In politics he is an earnest Republican, and in hearty stympathy with the principles of that party.

He was bred to the life of a farmer, and it was early impressed on his mind, by the example of his worthy parents, that dilligence and honesty were the surest guides to a life of independence.

He has reclaimed almost his entire farm of 120 acres and has 100 of it in a highly productive state. He has erected good buildings and made many other improvements, which have added much to the thrifty and neat appearance of his place. AnTo02

The swimming shoe Orin Fred Torbron invented

Orin Fred Torbron took off for Las Vegas while still using a cane after having suffered a broken hip. While on a winning streak, he called his son, Jack, in Santa Maria, California and told him that he would pay all of his expenses if he would come to Las Vegas to take him home. Fred had won about $1,000 when Jack came to pick him up.

Fred and Effie travelled by train all around the country after he retired from the Santa Fe Railroad Company. In his address book, he wrote, "Bury us where we fall."

1905/01/15	Baptised at the Church of the Holy Comforter in Cleburne, Texas
1905	Became a member of the Boys' Brigade
1914	Graduated from Fort worth High School
1917/05/08	Entered the elite First Officers Training Camp in Leon Springs (then known as Camp Funston), TX

Orin Forrest Torbron became one of the first group of officers ever to receive a commission outside of West Point, upon graduation as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army, Second Infantry Division. He fought in many important campaigns in the European Theater during World War I, and was awarded The Purple Heart, the Medialle de Saint-Mihiel from General John J. Pershing for commanding his regiment's brave victory in this historic battle, a medal for distinguished service, and was promoted to the rank of Major.

Recalled for service in World War II, he was reinstated as a Major in the U.S. Army Reserve Corps and was responsible for all recruiting efforts in the State of Arkansas. As a civilian, Joe was elected President of the First Officers Training Camp Association and served for two terms.

During his civilian career, he was associated with the Lamson and Sessions Company as their southwestern representative for over 27 years. He owned and operated several oil field valve and fitting companies in Texas and Louisiana, and was an independent oil man.

He served in many civic and business related leadership positions too numerous to recount, and was made an "Honorary Admiral" in the Texas Navy under the commission of Governor Allan Shivers in 1950; this is the highest award to citizens who have received recognition as individuals thus enhancing the reputation of the State of Texas. His induction was in recognition of his distinguished military service in World Wars I and II. He was an active member of the Good Shepard Episcopal Church in Austin, Texas.

1905/01/05 Baptised at the Church of the Holy Comforter, Cleburne, Texas by the Rev. W. W. Patrick
1905 Became a member of the Boys' Brigade TX, Johnson, Cleburne

Both Orin Forrest and Jack Truitt Torbron were members of the Boys' Brigade in 1905.

There is only one brigade south of the city of St. Louis and in fact only one in the state of Texas, and that is the Boy's Brigade of Cleburne.

The Boys Brigade was organized by the Rev. H. H. Johnston, Rector of the church of the Holy Comforter, Cleburne in the month of November, year 1904, with a membership of only twelve boys. Here is a brief introduction. It may be said that the above number of boys had to overcome the many petty remarks in regard to the Brigade, which were made by boys who did not know what they were making fun at and that it was only a reflection upon themselves. Would that all our boys possessed and wished to develop the "bump" of progress - yes the bumps of usefulness which prepares them for a good commercial life and strong citizenship.

Its main purpose is for the strengthening of the mind and body and thereby becoming more susceptible to the higher ideals of life. 2. To develop gracefulness, self control, promptness, decision, obedience and promptness in that which they have undertaken. 3. Concentration of mind and quick action.

To the fathers and mothers of the city of Cleburne, if any one who devotes his time, without price to the sowing of the above seed, the laying of such manly foundation, developing such faculties, should you not rally to his interests and do all in your power to further such interests, regardless of your creed, be as it may, and push on the noble work that no city in the State of Texas can boast of? JaTo08

1917/05/09	Enlisted in U.S. Army TX, Cooke, Gainsville JaTo06

Jack came to Detroit after he got out of the service in World War I. He rented a downstairs apartment with three other fellows. Since Jack was the only one that had a job, he was called the "Duke" of the Dugout. He was dating Marie at that time and she was called "Dukee." The "Duke" remained Jack's nickname for the rest of his life.

While living in Detroit, he drove to the East side and traded his car in for a new one. A few days later, his friend came over to show off his new used car. Lo and Behold, it was the same one that Jack had traded in!

At a family reunion in Leonides, Michigan, a popular retreat for the Ellis and Torbron families in the early '20's, Jack was asked to say Grace. Much to his mother's embarassment, this was his reply:

"Lord, make us able,
To eat everything on the table.
If there's any more in the kitchen,
Let it come 'a pitchin'."

CHAPTER 12

The Wells Family

There are a number of possibilities for the ancestors of our Samuel and Benjamin Wells. Charts 31 and 32 in Chapter Four illustrate connections to two possible ancestors. Another is that Benjamin Wells was the son of John Wells and Sarah Curtis. Clearly, we need to do more research to verify these and/or any other connections.

1675/11/11	Death

Samuel Chapin came to New England probably with his father and family in 1635 or earlier. A record at Roxbury, of early but unknown date, shows that he possessed 24 acres of land there, and had eight persons in his family: himself, wife, father, and five children. In 1641 he bought a house and lot from James Howe and became a freeman, which implied that he was a church member and gave him the right to vote and hold office under the Colony Government.

He is first called deacon in the records on February 21, 1650. Beside the regular duties assigned to this office, he conducted the Sabbath services, including preaching, for several years when the church lacked a pastor.

His first home lot was at the corner of the present Main and Pynchon Streets, but by 1664 he appears to have been living in Chicopee (later called Springfield), with his son Japhet-1 Chapin. His holdings in Springfield were large, but he gave all to his sons in his life time, reserving a life interest for himself and wife, his will disposing of personal estate only.

In October, 1675 Springfield was attacked by Indians and burned. Deacon Samuel Chapin did not see the town rebuilt, for in about a month as written by his son Japhet-1 Chapin, "My father was taken out of this troublesome world the 11 day of November about eleven of the clock in the eve, 1675."

Deacon Samuel Chapin "conscientiously and wisely discharged important trusts for the maintenance of religion and good order and left an abiding impress of his character and life on the city."

To judge from the private and official acts of the man, and from the firm hand he wrote, he was a man of some education, strong will, inflexible integrity, abundant charity and real piety. IsCh01

Josiah Chapin, second son of Deacon Samuel Chapin, was born in England in 1634, but must have come to this country very young. If he came with his father, in 1636, he would have been only about two years old. He is recorded in Springfield as having taken the oath of fidelity on March 23, 1656. He was a young man when he settled in Weymouth, MA. He afterwards removed to Braintree. In Weymouth he made his first marriage and there his first son, Samuel-2 Chapin, was born. In Braintree he made two subsequent marriages and had 13 children. His father transferred to him lands in Mendon, MA, which had been conferred upon Deacon Samuel Chapin by the Massachusetts colony for services rendered. Josiah Chapin removed to Mendon between 1680 and 1682, and spent the rest of his long life there, being one of the leading citizens of the town. He was Selectman for many years, for 11 years chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Justice of the Peace by commission said to have come from the British Parliament, and in 1689 was the first elected representative to the General Court. The tax lists of Mendon show that for successive years he was the largest taxpayer in the place. He held many other offices and in 1720, when he was 86 years old, he was again chosen representative. He was for half a century Mendon's first citizen and died September 10, 1726, aged 92 years, having outlived his three wives, and leaving a large family of children, from whom has come one of the largest and strongest branches of the Chapin family. General Israel Chapin was a Revolutionary War Soldier and Indian Agent under Washington. A most illustrious man.

General Israel Chapin played an important part in the early history of Western New York. He had served as captain of the Hatfield Militia at Boston and Lexington, as major in the expediton to Saratoga, as colonel of the Second Regiment of Hampshire County Militia and finally after the Campaign against Quebec as Brigadier General. The return of peace brought him fresh activities, for as a member of the part consummating the famous Phelps and Gorham purchase in 1789, he joined the settlement at the foot of Lake Canandaigua. He was chosen by Secretary of War Knox as go-between to the difficult Six Nations. He became both the protector of the white settlers from Indian depredations and the protector of the Red Man against white injustice.

The gravesite of General Israel Chapin

The story of his dealings with his savage charges, his adroitness, his honorable and just diplomacy makes a fair page in the otherwise dark history of American relations with the Indians.

He was described as a man with a powerful physique - six feet tall and weighing 220 pounds. IsCh01

---- Birth (William Mullins/Alice ----) ENGLAND
iv. Mullins, Joseph

Pilgrims Signing the Mayflower Compact Library of Congress

William Mullins was probably about 50 years old when he came to America. He left behind a married son and a married daughter in Dorking, undoubtedly by a first marriage. His famous daughter, Priscilla, and younger son, Joseph, were issue of his second wife, Alice, who accompanied him on the Mayflower. William-2, his elder son, was married by 1617 and three of his children were baptised in Dorking. He immigrated to New England in 1636.

William Mullins' will, dated 2 April 1621, the first made in New England, shows that he held nine shares in the Adventurers Company and that his estate consisted principally of a stock of boots and shoes. Two of the witnesses to this will were Dr. Giles Heale, surgeon of the Mayflower, and Captain Christopher Jones, its master. MiMu01

ii. Alden, John
iii. Alden, Joseph
iv. Alden, David
v. Alden, Jonathan
vi. Alden, Ruth Bass
vii. Alden, Mary Delano
viii. Alden, Rebeca

ix. Alden, Sarah Standish
x. Alden, Zachariah
xi. Alden, Priscilla

Alden may have been the son of George Alden and Jane Alden. Genealogical researchers have found a George Alden and a William Mullins (possibly Priscilla's father) both on a tax list of Holyrood Ward in 1602, leading to speculation that the famous romance of John and Priscilla may have begun in Southhampton, England.

Other researchers have discovered that an Alden family resided in Harwich, County Essex, England, in the middle of the 17th Century and they were related by marriage to Captain Christopher Jones of the Mayflower. This Alden family was engaged in seafaring pursuits and among them was a young John Alden of about the same age as the one who sailed on the Mayflower. Family connection would easily explain John Alden's employment on the ship and how he came to make the famous voyage. MiAl02

CHILDREN:

i. Grinnell, Daniel Senior Gr-03
ii. Grinnell, Mathew-2
iii. Grinnell, Thomas
iv. Grinnell, Mary-1
---- Marriage to John Manchester

The Grinnell line began in France and has been traced as far as Pierre Grenelle, collector of taxes in 1510, born about the year 1480 and married March 15, 1509 to Marie Perrier.

Mathew Grinnell, born in Macon, France, in 1602 was the son of Jean Grenelle, Lord of Pimont, keeper of the government salt stores and counsellor to the king. Jean inherited from his parents the estate of Pimont and a residence at Teynurs, and was also general heir at law of Claude Grenelle, his brother.

Mathew Grinnell embraced the Protestant religion and from this fact was obliged to emigrate. He settled in Rhode Island.

He was admitted the 20th of May, 1638 as an inhabitant of Newport. Five years later, the 10th of November 1643, his widow Rose made an ante-nuptial agreement with Anthony Paone, then in Portsmouth whose wife she became. She deeded to her three sons, Mathew{-2} Grinnell, Thomas Grinnell and Daniel Grinnell, two goats apiece and to her son Mathew a cow; also it was agreed that upon the death of either the property of the one deceased should go to the children of that person. "Grinnell" became the American spelling of "Grenelle." MiGr01

Daniel Grinnell Senior was a maltster. In 1656 he bought 30 acres of farm property in Portsmouth and on the 8th of June, 1657, was received as an inhabitant of Portsmouth. In 1687 he left the island and took up his residence in Little Compton. In 1688 he deeded to his son Daniel, Junior, the south half of the 13th lot in the grand division of Little Compton, and in 1694 to his son Richard the other half of this lot. It was one of the one hundred acre great lots of the first purchase. In 1702 Richard sold this to his father with 100 acres more, but on the 6th of July 1703 Daniel Senior re-conveyed it to his son, and appears no more of record. MiGr01

Recollections from Linda Graham, Anna's great granddaughter:

It was told to me as a little girl that great grandma Anna was one of many children. Due to something terrible that had happened, she left Detroit with the gardener (Jessie Lucas) and came to California. She did not like to talk about her life in Detroit, and would leave the room if we asked too many questions.

Anna was an "extra" for several movies while she lived in Los Angeles. She later became a nurse and practiced "natural" medicine. I recall when I had the chicken pox she made up some kind of "goo" to dab on the itchy spots.

One of the most interesting things about Anna was that she was psychic. She had a crystal ball that "rested" under a piece of black velvet. She was very good with her predictions.

We never knew her husband, Jessie. He died when grandma Rose was very young. He must have been a wornderful man. Anna never remarried and all of her life missed him and waited for the day they would be reunited.

1923/01/30 Will of Jessie Daniel Lucas named Rose Katie Lucas as the recipient of most of the possessions CA, Los Angeles, Los Angeles

1928 Marriage to Thomas Robert Crawford

1931/04/08 Deed of trust between Anna Teresa Lucas, a widow, and Rose Anna Crawford (Rose Katie Lucas) and John W. Carrigan, trustee for Jessie Daniel Lucas; lot 17, block E, Glassell subdivision, book 6, p. 139 of miscellaneous records CA, Los Angeles, Los Angeles

1973/05/09 Death

1973/05 Buried CA, Monterey

Recollections from Linda Graham, Rose's granddaughter:

Grandma Rose was a very tall, strong woman. She also did some "walk-on" parts for movies in Hollywood.

She met my grandfather there in Los Angeles and after my father was born they moved to Forrest Ranch where my grandfather was a fire station ranger.

Grandma Rose always took care of her mother, Anna, and she protected Anna's secrets. I think she would have told me if I had pressured her but she was in such pain the last days of her life that I didn't want to cause her any more grief.

Rose had a love for nature. I remember as a little girl going into her little greenhouse to see the beautiful flats of plants growing. Her Hydrangea blossoms were as big as my head and we could hide in the plant itself. Outside her bedroom window she had two miniature rose bushes: one with pink flowers and one with white flowers. The flowers were so small and yet so perfect.

SPOUSE: Crawford, Thomas Robert Se-05
1904/09/11 Birth (parents unknown) PA, Ford City
1949/04/09 Death CA, Monterey
1949/04 Buried CA, Monterey

Thomas, or Tim as he was known, died of a heart attack while fishing on Monterey Bay at the age of 45. He served as a forest ranger for the Fire Service spending long hours in the lookout tower watching for forrest fires. He was an avid hunter and would often bring home friends to dinner without notice.

The Selewski Family: top row, from left: Jacob-2, Anna, John, Marie, Joseph. bottom row, from left: Julia, Julie Anna, Jacob, Martha

Frances Selewski

ix. Selewski, Mary (Marie) To-25

Marie, too, held many secrets about her family background. There must have been some very terrible events that occured in her early family life to have her deny for so many years the existence of her familiy in Michigan, as did her sisters, Rose and Frances. Marie would often receive a Christmas card from Frances, signed "Me." We suspect that Jacob's extreme abusiveness was the root of all of these "secrets."

Thomas Francis Flanigan

On August 3, 1909, The Los Angeles Examiner wrote about the construction of the Aqueduct Tunnel being built for 34 miles to carry water to Los Angeles. "T. F. Flanigan is the tunnel superintendent and Benjamin M. Pruitt is the tunnel foreman, under whose direction a record was made. "Tommie" Flanigan, little and quiet and unassertive, but as his men say "with everything in his noodle about a tunnel that he ought to know" was one of the first tunnel men to be employed on the aqueduct." It takes Flanigan and his men to beat the Swiss."

We received this certificate verifying that our ancestors go back 150 years in Michigan.

CHAPTER 28

Family History in Context

From a historical perspective, our family roots can be traced back to 16th century England and the colonization of the United States. In this chapter we have attempted to show the relationship between our families' major events such as births, marriages, major movements, and deaths which are shown in bold on the left, in the context of the historical events shown on the right.

BEFORE COLONIZATION: UNTIL 1600

Great Britain

1575 - Edward How was born.

1590 - John Chapin married Phillipe Easton in Paignton, England.

1598 - Samuel Chapin was baptised in England.

1599 - John Alden was born.

Our earliest ancestors can be traced back to Elizabethan England. The population then had increased to almost five million, and southern England especially was becoming crowded. Most of the people lived in the country, but some movement had begun toward the towns. Roads were not good, and most of the travel was by horseback. Most of the houses were built of timber, with the aid of lath and plaster. Some brick and stone were used, though, and window glass was common and chimneys were being introduced. The principal rooms were parlor, bedrooms, scullery (room adjoining the kitchen where pots and pans were cleaned), pantry, buttery (pantry), and spicery (a place where spices were kept), plus long halls and galleries and broad straight stairways. In the better houses wooden floors were being used, but among the poor, dirt floors covered with straw prevailed. An increasing number of orchards and gardens were found.

Costume was ornate, and in this matter Queen Elizabeth set the pace with her extravagant attire. The men wore stuffed and stiffened doublets, sleeves, breeches, and hose, with a variety of hats and headdresses. The women built their hair high on their heads, and both sexes wore wigs.

The increased dependence of the government on taxes which only prosperous people could pay, the breakdown of local guild regulation, the dissolution of the monasteries, and the expansion of foreign commerce were some of the factors which caused people to leave England and seek their fortune in other lands.

France

1602 - Mathew Grinnell was born in Macon, France.

France was developing an absolute monarchy and was becoming one of the most powerful nations of Europe. The Wars of Religion in France had ended with the proclamation of the Edict of Nantes in 1598 and with the ascension to the throne of Henry IV. Protestantism was victorious in France and the Netherlands, as well as in England.

COLONIZATION TO NAVIGATION ACTS: 1600 - 1660

Great Britain

1601 - Cicely Penny was baptised in Paignton, England.

1607 - Edward Griswold was born in Warwichshire, England.

1610 - William Buell was born in Chesterton, Huntingdonshire, England.

1619 - William Pabodie was born in England.

1623 - Samuel Chapin married Cicely Penny at Paignton, England.

1634 - Josiah Chapin was born in England.

James I and the Tudors brought Protestantism to England after Elizabeth I died. In Scotland especially, did its roots strike deeply. There, after the flight of Mary Stuart to England, Presbyterianism had become the established religion. Puritanism in all its forms was growing in England, and all Puritans found some objections to the Anglican system. An act of Parliament in 1593 had threatened with exile all who refused to attend church or to receive the Anglican communion, but this had not settled the trouble; indeed, it had only caused milder Puritans to conform outwardly and more radical ones to emigrate to the Netherlands and elsewhere. Catholicism had been greatly weakened in its struggle with nationalism, as represented by Elizabeth. She had made conformity a test of loyalty, had been lenient toward Non-conformists, and had attracted to her support many Catholics in the conflict with Philip II. There was a growing and prosperous middle class in the towns; but the country dwellers, as a whole, were becoming more impoverished. Everybody was affected by the general increase in prices.

Virginia

1620's- David Ellis came to Virginia with the second supply of emigrants from England. He was sent to build a house for King Powhantan on the York River.

The first wave of colonization in America began in 1606 and continued until 1637. During this time three groups of English colonies were established; two involved our ancestors: the Northern Virginia Company and the Southern Virginia Company. The initial efforts of the Northern Company failed because of an extremely unseasonable and frosty Maine winter. The Southern Virginia Company in its exploration of 1606 found no gold nor access to the Pacific. The James and Chickahominy Rivers did not provide the long sought route to Asia.

The first colony consisted largely of decayed gentlemen and released prisoners. They, under Captain Christopher Newport, selected the Jamestown location in 1607, which was eventually abandoned due to malaria. By 1608, 53 of the 120 Englishmen were left alive.

They were saved by Captain John Smith because he was able to placate the Indians, provide strong leadership, and plant corn. Only the spirit of certain men, who refused to admit defeat, kept the colony going.

Between 1615 and 1625, Virginia was transformed from an unsuccessful trading post ruled by iron discipline into a commonwealth that began to open a new and wonderful life to the common man in England.

New England

1620 - William Mullins and John Alden came to America on the ship, the Mayflower.
1621 - John Alden and Priscilla Mullins were married. On September 12, 1621, William Mullins died.
1622 - Elizabeth Alden was born, supposedly the first white woman born in New England.
1627 - John Alden moved from Plymouth to Duxbury, Massachusetts.

With the failure of the Northern Virginia Company, it became possible for the New England area to become settled by the Pilgrims. They wished to carry the Protestant Reformation to its conclusion, since the Church of England, a compromise between Rome and the Reform, did not satisfy them nor were they pleased with the frivolity, extravagance, and moral corruption. In 1609 a group of East Anglian Puritans moved to Leyden and formed an English Congregational Church. Sir Edwin Sandys obtained a grant from the Virginia Company consenting to the Pilgrim migration. After numerous delays, the Mayflower set sail. John Alden was hired as a cooper (a person who made or repaired barrels or casks).

1630 - William Buell arrived in Dorchester in America. Edward Griswold is married.
1635 - Samuel Chapin arrived in Boston.
1635 - John Pabodie arrived in Plymouth on the ship, Planter.
1635 - Daniel Grinnell Senior was born in Portsmouth, Rhode Island.
1635 - William Buell moved to Windsor, Connecticut.
1638 - Mathew Grinnell was admitted as an inhabitant of Newport, Rhode Island on May 20, 1638.
1639 - Edward Griswold settled in Windsor, Connecticut.
1639 - Edward How died in Boston, Massachusetts.
1639 - Mary King was born.

Many of the colonists came to America to try to find religious freedom. Catholics, as well as some Protestants, Jews, and people who did not want to belong to a church had troubles in England and other parts of Europe. The rulers of these countries told their citizens that they must go to a specific church. The first group to come to America seeking religious freedom was the Pilgrims in 1620. On November 11, 1620 the Mayflower, anchored in the harbor of Cape Cod. Before landing at Plymouth, the Pilgrims agreed on the government they wanted, and drew up a document called the Mayflower Compact. John Alden was the seventh signer of this document, the precursor to the establishment of American Democracy.

1640 - Mary Wordell was born.
1640 - William Buell was married on November 18, 1640 in Windsor, Connecticut.
1641 - Samuel Buell was born in Hartford, Connecticut.
1643 - Mathew Grinnell was admitted as an inhabitant of Rhode Island. He died in Newport, Rhode Island.

The settlers were ill-fitted for the wilderness. One-half died during the first winter; however when the Mayflower returned to England in April, 1621, none of the Pilgrims returned.

After 10 years, approximately 300 people lived in the colony. A dozen fishing and trading villages existed. In the summer of 1630, 17 ships with 900 to 1000 people arrived. Most of the new people fled political, economic, and religious unrest in England; they were Puritans (similar to the Pilgrims since they disagreed with the Church of England). With the transfer of the charter and company to the Americas, the colony became, for all practical purposes, independent. The stockholders of the company were called "freemen" and they became voters. Non-Puritans, however, did not participate in the government.

1644 - Elizabeth Alden married William Pabodie.
1645 - Elizabeth How was born in New Haven, Connecticut.
1646 - Deborah Griswold was born. William Redfield left Massachusetts in September, 1646.
1646 - James Redfield was born.

The new villages were created from land grants from the general court which established a village center and the land was laid out in lots. When pasturage became short in the town, people would leave and a new village was established to the west or north. In 1630, Boston, Massachusetts was established.

1653 - William Redfield built a home in New London, Connecticut.
1657 - Daniel Grinnell Senior was received as an inhabitant of Portsmouth, Rhode Island.
1658 - Josiah Chapin married Mary King in Weymouth, Massachusetts.

Education was important to the Puritans. In 1636, Harvard was established and Providence, Rhode Island was established. In 1636, Thomas Hooker began the western migration to the Connecticut River. In 1638, New Haven Connecticut was founded by Theophilus Eaton.

Roger Williams and Anne Hutchinson were banished from Massachusetts in 1644. They formed settlements in Providence, Rhode Island. Their religious beliefs were more liberal than the Puritans since they accepted all men as equals.

COLONIAL TRADE AND PROBLEMS: 1660 - 1713

Great Britain

1709 - Patrick Adair was born in Old Luce, Scotland.

The Act of Settlement in 1701 provided that the English crown should next descend to Anne and her heirs; it required that English kings be Protestants.

1710 - John-1 Lancaster was born in England.

The Scotch Parliament declared that Anne's successor should not rule Scotland unless such ruler guaranteed freedom of religion and trade, and it followed this act by refusing to vote the usual money for the English sovereign. The English Parliament replied by declaring Scotch to be aliens in England and threatened to exclude Scotch imports of coal, linen, and cattle unless the Scotch yielded. Both sides began to prepare for war, but wiser councils prevailed and secured the appointment of a joint committee to settle existing differences. That group worked out the Act of Union of 1707. It provided that Scotland should give up its Parliament, but was to have 16 peers in the English House of Lords and 45 members in the House of Commons. Scotland also assumed one-fortieth of the English debt, secured free trade with England, and kept her own law courts, system of private law, educational system, and Presbyterian establishment. Although there was much opposition in Scotland to the adoption of the Treaty, the Scotch Parliament finally accepted it, and so likewise did the English. Since that time England and Scotland have been under one government.

Virginia

1661 - John Ellis Senior was born. He settled on Peters Creek, a branch of the Tuckahoe Creek in Henrico County, Virginia.

1683 - John Ellis Senior married Susannah Royal in 1683. By October, 1683, he appears in Varina, the County seat of Henrico, Virginia.

1705 - William Ellis was born in Henrico County, Virginia.

During the 1650's in Virginia, the population doubled to 30,000. The over-production of tobacco and the resulting low price created economic problems. It was many years before the demand for tobacco increased sufficiently so that higher prices could be asked.

By 1668 the price of tobacco reached its lowest level. Attempts to curtail production to increase the price failed when Maryland did not participate in this effort.

The Virginia Indians clashed with the militia; they broke into small bands and attacked frontier settlements. In response, the Governor established forts. This upset the poorer whites and frontier farmers. Led by Nathaniel Bacon, a band of rebels slaughtered an Indian tribe and marched on Jamestown. Mr. Bacon may have wanted to set up a free state. However when Bacon died in October 1676, the rebellion also died.

New England

1662 - William Redfield died.
1662 - Samuel Buell married Deborah Griswold on November 13, 1662 in Windsor, Connecticut.
1667 - John Pabodie died. Lydia Pabodie was born on April 3, 1667 in Duxbury, Massachusetts.
1668 - Daniel Grinnell Junior was born in Portsmouth, Connecticut.
1668 - Captain Seth Chapin was born in Braintree, Massachusetts.
1669 - James Redfield married Elizabeth How in New Haven, Connecticut.

1670 - Margaret Griswold died.
1671 - Bethia Thurston was born.
1675 - Samuel Chapin died.
1676 - Mary Wordell died.
1676 - Mary Chapin died on May 30, 1676 in Braintree, Massachusetts.

New England did well during this period by sending diplomatic agents to London to represent them.

Between 1675 and 1677, the area experienced a terrible Indian War - the King Philip War. The nearby Indians joined together when they were caught between the whites and the powerful Narragansett tribe. However, with loyal Indian support, the New England militia broke the Indian concentration and hunted the smaller bands down. The war collapsed when King Philip died in August, 1676. The people of the colony did not fully recover from the war until 1720.

The High Court of Chancery vacated the Massachusetts Bay Charter in 1684 because the colony refused to implement the Navigation Acts in which certain goods could only be traded with England. Part of the reason for refusal was the fact the colony had no representation in Parliament and in passage of the Acts.

James II tried to consolidate the various groups of colonies (for example New England and New York); however, he was expelled from England in 1688. As a result of the 1688 Glorious Revolution, it was determined that Parliament had precedence over the king. Soon thereafter the colonies were back to where they were before 1685. King William III and Mary II, jointly, ruled the British government.

1681 - William Buell died.
1682 - Theophilis Redfield Senior was born.
1682 - Cicely Chapin died on February 28, 1682 in Springfield, Massachusetts.
1682 - John Alden died on July 6, 1682.
1683 - Daniel Grinnell Senior moved to Little Compton, Rhode Island.
1683 - Mary Buell died on September 2, 1684.
1687 - Daniel Grinnell Senior moved to Little Compton, Rhode Island.

1690 - Priscilla Grinnell was born.
1691 - Edward Griswold died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.
1691 - Captain Seth Chapin married Bethia Thurston on March 25, 1691 in Medfield, Massachusetts.
1693 - William Wordell and Elizabeth (How) Redfield died.

1703 - Daniel Grinnell Senior died in Little Compton, Rhode Island. Mary Grinnell also died this year.
1706 - Theophilis Redfield Senior married Priscilla Grinnell in Westbrook, Connecticut.
1707 - William Pabodie died in Little Compton, Rhode Island.

In 1691, King William's War with France began. No English frontier farm in the colonies was safe. During this time the witchcraft scare began in Massachusetts, particularly in Salem.

The series of hostilities between Great Britain and France came to an end after Queen Anne's War in 1713.

CONFLICTS AND GROWING PAINS: 1713 - 1774

Virginia

A change and expansion in the colonies began. Immigrants, mostly Germans and Scotch-Irish, entered the colonies and, at the same time, there was westward movement. Population and trade expanded. Population grew from 360,000 in 1713 to 1.6 million in 1760.

1728 - John Ellis Senior died in Henrico County, Virginia.

Before 1713 land was free; England was interested in the rents associated with the land. Afterwards, older settlers bought and sold the land. In some parts, land became a speculative venture.

1732 - John Ellis Junior (son of William Ellis) was born in Henrico County, Virginia.
1734 - Nathaniel Lancaster was born.

As part of the westward expansion, the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia was explored in 1716.

1740 - Hope Walker was born.

In 1726, many Germans and Scotch-Irish entered the Shenandoah Valley. Settlement of the "Old West" created new internal tensions. There came a mixture of ethnic groups and religions. The older areas along the eastern belt kept the frontier under represented. The eastern group was able to buy frontier products cheap and charge a premium for imports from England. There were many small rebellions.

1758 - Nathaniel Lancaster married Hope Walker in Goochland County, Virginia.

Great Britain

1717 - Sarah Milroy was born in Miekle Flote, Galloway, Scotland.

1735 - Patrick Adair married Sarah Milroy in Scotland.

1742 - Agnes Adair was born in Old Luce, Galloway, Scotland.

1745 - William-1 Torbron was baptised in Highsiness, Galloway, Scotland.

1766 - Sarah Adair died in Old Luce, Scotland.

1767 - William-1 Torbron married Agnes Adair in Whitecrook, Scotland.

1768 - Andrew-2 Torbron was born in Glen Luce, Scotland.

1771 - William-1 Torbron died in Old Luce, Scotland.

1774 - Andrew-2 Torbron and Agnes Torbron left Glen Luce, Scotland for New York.

1778 - Andrew-1 Torbron died in Scotland.

Castle Sinniness, Glenluce, Scotland. Site of many Torbron marriages.

Situated on the boundary between the Rhinns and the Marchars, Glen Luce is "a spot of perfect tranquility where sea and country meet." So wrote an eminent Victorian.

The Cistercian Monks in 1190 created gardens and orchards said to be a wonder to behold. They are supposed to have called the area "Vallis Lucis" - Valley of Light. The people who possibly gave the bay, glen, and river the name "Glen Luce" settled on the sand dunes of the bay around 6,000 B.C. where many flint artifacts and antiquities have been found. Thomas Hay built the Castle of Park with Abbey stones in 1590 - a house built on a defensive site during unsettled times. The sea is ever visible and the remains of the pier at Stairhaven with the caves at Auchenmalg reminds one that not so long ago most trade, whether legal or smuggled, was seaborne.

The position of Glenluce village in a natural pass from the coast made it an important staging post in coaching times and a station on the now closed railway - only the magnificent viaduct remains to this day.

Our Scottish ancestors originated from areas in Wigtonshire, Galloway, Scotland, particularly around the area of Glen Luce.

The parish of Glen Luce after the settlement of the revolution at the close of the seventeenth century, like many similar districts in Scotland at that time, drifted into a backwash of local quietude and indifference to national affairs. The landowners were free to take a personal interest in the improvement of their estates and the development of agriculture and the life of the native population were dependent on the operations connected there. This provided work for many years for workmen such as masons, dykers, ditchers in addition to the ordinary farm laborers.

The town, Wigton, was once a major burgh and port. It formerly possessed a royal castle and a large Dominican friary, both of which have been completely obliterated. The ruins of the old church stand adjacent to sections of its 13th century precursor.

Wigton is most widely know, however, for the group of late 17th century "Martyrs' Tombs." These commemorate the deaths by drowning of Margaret Wilson and Margaret Lachlan and the hanging of three men, all in 1685. Collectively known as the Wigton Martyrs, these five paid the penalty for their refusal to renounce the Presbyterian faith in favor of the then established Episcopalian Church. The white tombstones of the martyrs' graves bear a moving account of the story. The two women were drowned in Wigton Bay by being tied to stakes while the tide rose over their bodies. The site is marked by a stone pillar on the edge of the salt flats below the church.

The town is dominated by a great stone obelisk on Windy Hill, visible for miles around. It was erected in memory of the martyrs in the 19th century.

New England

1713 - Benjamin Chapin was born in Mendon, Massachusetts.
1717 - Elizabeth Pabodie died in Rhode Island.
1718 - Theophilis Redfield Junior was born.
1719 - Deborah (Griswold) Buell died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1720 - Samuel Buell died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.
1726 - Josiah Chapin died in Mendon, Massachusetts.

1738 - Benjamin Chapin married Annie Rice in Grafton, Massachusetts.

1740 - Elizabeth Marsh was born in Hatfield, Massachusetts.
1740 - Daniel Grinnell Junior died in Saybrook, Connecticut.
1740 - Theophilis Redfield Jr married Mary Buell.
1740 - Priscilla Nettleton died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.
1740 - General Israel Chapin was born in Grafton, Massachusetts.
1741 - Eliakim Redfield was born in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1744 - Bethia Chapin died in Mendon, Massachusetts.
1746 - Captain Seth Chapin died.
1748 - Lydia Grinnell died in Saybrook, Massachusetts.
1749 - Mary (Buell) Redfield died.

1750 - Annie Chapin died on June 17, 1750.
1756 - Benjamin Wells Junior was born in Hatfield, Massachusetts.

The English ruling class wanted no competition for their leading industries from the colonies. Despite the English efforts, some industries in the colony thrived. The biggest problems for the colonies were money and coinage. The colonists began to use paper money and promissory notes to avoid usage of English coins.

The colonists wanted to continue their growth by moving into the Ohio Valley. The English movement was considered a threat by the French. In June, 1754, the French began exploration of the West. At about the same time the Albany Congress debated colonial union; their initial effort went so far as to propose a federal union.

England took no notice of this union because of new wars in which it was involved. The King of England allowed the colonies freedom and self-government because England and France were at war much of the time between 1689 and 1763. Generally these wars were fought in Europe, even though they concerned colonial issues. In 1754, war broke out between the British and French in North America. The problems in North America grew out of the different ways the British and French settled the land. The French controlled the area which is now Canada. Most of the people in Canada were trappers and fur traders. The British controlled the area which is now the United States and usually built farms or towns. Unfortunately, both the British and the French claimed one piece of unsettled land. When French troops tried to move into this land, they met Virginia militiamen. They fought and at first the French, with help from their Indian allies, won most of the battles. This was the beginning of the French and Indian War.

United States

1759 - Theophilis Redfield Senior died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1763 - General Israel Chapin married Elizabeth Marsh.
1766 - Eliakim Redfield married Priscilla Nettleton in Killingsworth, Connecticut.
1767 - Anna Chapin was born.
1769 - Ezra Redfield was born in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1770 - Priscilla (Grinnell) Redfield died. On January 30, 1770 Theophilis Redfield Junior died.

The French and Indian War (part of the larger worldwide war know as the Seven Years War) lasted from 1756 to 1763. There were battles in the colonies near the western settlements of Virginia. The British lost many of these battles. In 1758, William Pitt became the English Secretary of State. He focused his war effort on the Americas because of his desire to have most, if not all, of it.

On September 13, 1759, the English took Quebec. By 1763, there was peace in Europe as a result of the Peace of Paris. At the end of these battles the English had accumulated a large debt and territory to the Mississippi River.

In 1760, when King George III was king of England, he was conciliatory to the colonies for 10 years. Though well meaning, he lost opportunities to deal with the colonies. Competition from English party rivalries was bothersome. The Boston Tea Party became his first challenge to his personal rule.

With the French excluded along the east coast and Canada, the British took over more responsibility than they could handle from an organizational perspective. The Americans wanted to assert their rights while the English wanted to remind them of their duties. Other problems included military, political, and economic issues, as well as organizational issues.

During this time period Virginia was a wonderful country for the rich. It was decentralized and had large individual plantations. Williamsburgh (the capital) and Norfolk (the port) were the largest cities. William and Mary was the college for the rich. There was no middle class - people were either rich or frontiersmen. New York was aristocratic. A franchise to vote required a high property qualification. New York City was cosmopolitan -- it had stately mansions and evil slums. There were enough Irish for a St. Patrick's Day parade and enough Scots to support a Presbyterian Church.

In New England, the population was most homogeneous. It had the fewest Scots and Irish. It was, however, the most democratic. Its industries were fishing, shipbuilding, and maritime commerce. The homes were comfortable. Land was not an investment. Social life evolved around the church.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR ERA: 1774 - 1783

United States

1775 - Benjamin Wells Senior began his service in the Revolutionary War in April, 1775 in Boston, Massachusetts; he served in Capt Israel Chapin's County and Capt. Stoddard's County. General Israel Chapin also served in the War; he was a Captain in the Hatfield Militia at Boston and Lexington, served in the expedition to Saratoga, and the campaign against Quebec.

1776 - Anna Chapin was born. Lovina Lockwood was born in Springfield, Vermont.

1779 - Solomon Gage was born.

1780 - Joshua E. Ellis Senior was born in Virginia.

1782 - Benjamin Chapin was born in Worcester, Massachusetts.

1782 - Sally Ellis was born.

1782 - Hannah Hare was born in Dutchess County, New York.

To show they were against the British laws and policies, the colonists did not follow or obey the laws. Many laws the colonists simply ignored. They knew it would be almost impossible for the British government to prevent them from settling west of the Appalachians or from smuggling goods in and out of the colonies. They also boycotted English goods as much as they could, finding substitutes for the goods. They demonstrated in public and wrote letters and editorials in the newspapers complaining about the unfair taxes and laws. Several patriotic societies were formed. Men opposed to the Stamp Act formed the Sons of Liberty to organize protests against that tax. By 1772, so many colonists were protesting English policies that Committees of Correspondence were formed to keep all the different groups informed of new developments. The colonies cooperated with each other and united against England.

The colonists held the first meeting of the Continental Congress, from September 5 to October 26, 1774, in Philadelphia. Twelve of the 13 colonies sent representatives, including such famous men as George Washington and Patrick Henry. The Congress wrote a Declaration of Rights, which asked the King to look at and correct the problems about which they were complaining, including repealing the Intolerable Acts.

The Congress also voted on a boycott of British goods. Patrick Henry's stirring words to close the congress, "Give me liberty or give me death," told the English that this group of colonists calling themselves Americans was willing to fight for the principles in which they believed. The colonists began training the militia and storing supplies.

Unfortunately, the English did not listen. The English legislature and the King rejected the Declaration of Rights. They also sent troops to Lexington, Massachusetts, to find the colonists who were leading the rebellion and to seize military supplies at Concord, where the colonists "fired the shot heard round the world," and started the American Revolutionary War.

During the first year of the war, the colonists were not sure if they were fighting for their rights as English citizens or for independence. Some factors helped the American decide to fight for independence. The English hired German soldiers, called Hessians, to help them fight the war which made the Americans very angry. Some Americans were influenced by Thomas Paine's famous pamphlet, "Common Sense." His appeal to Americans that they had a "moral obligation to the world ... to set herself up as an independent democratic republic," persuaded many people to be active, loyal supporters of the Revolution. The Americans had self-confidence because they had fought well against the British. George Washington was their Commander in Chief. He had military experience and was greatly admired by his men. He was a great inspiration during the hard times of the war. And though his men were not as well trained as the English soldiers, they usually could shoot more accurately.

In 1781, the Articles of Confederation were completed. Under this system the states held the power. The national government governed the western lands and determined how new states came into the union; they had no power in trade, tax, or coinage.

During the 1780's Congress developed some western expansion problems - the issue of land sales, Indians, fur trade, and type of government.

CONSTITUTION, WASHINGTON, AND WAR: 1783 - 1812

1784 - Benjamin Wells Senior was discharged from the Army in early 1784.

1784 - On June 16, 1784 Robert Lancaster was born.

1785 - Eliakim Redfield died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1785 - On June 23, 1785, Benjamin Wells Senior married Anna Chapin.

The Treaty of Paris in January of 1783 gave America its independence, the territory to the Mississippi River, and retained the British in Canada. What is interesting about the war is the fact that the Americans did not win sooner and easier; all they had to do was to hold what they had. The British had to win vast lands, and they had a long ocean journey which reduced their strength due to deaths. Their supply lines were very long. One reason for the slow victory was the fact that only a small number of Americans wanted to fight -- the army was never over 20,000 at any one time.

1785 - Priscilla (Nettleton) Redfield died in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1788 - William Ellis died in Henrico County, Virginia.

1789 - Benjamin Wells Senior moved to Canandaigua, New York.

Between 1781 and 1786 the Confederation was dependent on the good will of the states. The states issued their own money and there was no cooperation in trade. The farmers became desperate financially and had no political power. Debt became rampant. Because of this debt, Shay's Rebellion took place in Massachusetts. Shay led the farmers against the courts to prevent judgments for debt.

1791 - Benjamin Wells Junior was born in Canandaigua, New York.

1793 - Ezra Redfield married Lovina Lockwood in Killingsworth, Connecticut.

1794 - Elizabeth Chapin died in Canandaigua, New York.

1795 - General Israel Chapin died in Canandaigua, New York.

1795 - Thankful Redfield was born in Springfield, Vermont.

1796 - Jane Kinkade was born.

1799 - John Ellis Junior died in Henrico, Virginia.

1799 - Andrew-2 Torbron rented a farm from James C. Duane in Duanesburg, New York.

By 1786 Congress was in possession of the western lands, which were ceded by the original colonies.

The first occurrence of a Torbron is documented to be at a particular location since their arrival in America in 1774 is in Duanesburg, New York in 1799. Duanesburg was initially in Albany County, which was created in 1683. In 1809 Schenectady County was created from Albany County. The new county was wooded and had numerous farms.

1803 - Andrew-2 Torbron married Hannah Hare.
1804 - Joshua Ellis married Catherine Powers in Henry County, Kentucky.
1804 - Robert Lancaster married Sally Ellis.
1804 - William-2 Torbron was born in Duanesburg, New York.

The town of Duanesburg, New York, long has had the reputation and recognition as a township that proved to be a powerful influence in the early days of a growing and expanding nation.

Early records show the names of three Duanesburg "sons" who played an especially important role in an era that has become a nation's heritage.

It was James Duane who "officially" settled Duanesburg in 1765, and it was he to whom Andrew Torbron rented his land. Duane entered into an agreement with 19 Germans from Pennsylvania, and one from New York, to start the settlement of his land, a 50,000 acre holding, acquired in part from his father, Anthony Duane, and in part through purchase.

The town's founder, James Duane, was the first Mayor of New York under the constitution. He was a member of both the first and second Continental Congresses, serving more days than any other member from New York. Yet, in spite of the demands made upon him by his national and state activities, Duane maintained his close ties with Duanesburg. In 1793, at his own expense, he erected Christ Episcopal Church, now known as the oldest unaltered Episcopal Church in the state. On his death, Duane was buried beneath the now historic edifice

On April 30, 1789, George Washington took the oath as President.

In the beginning of 1790, agriculture was the occupation of 90% of the people. Settlements were scattered and roads were bad. New York was the most heterogeneous state. Dutch made up 1/6 of the population. In Albany, Dutch was spoken. New York City had 33,000 people. Inhabited areas followed the Hudson River to past Albany; it also followed the Mohawk Valley to the west. On February 18, 1791, Vermont was admitted by Congress as the 14th state. This was done after New York relinquished her claims to the territory. The Public Lands Act of 1791 was passed and established the system of townships and sections for future land titles in the west.

1809 - Hercules Ellis Junior was born in Oldham County, Kentucky.
1809 - Nathaniel Lancaster and Hope Lancaster died.
1809 - On May 16, 1809 Lucy Gage was born in New York state.

After the Revolutionary War settlers from North Carolina and Virginia pressed through the Cumberland gap to settle both Kentucky and Tennessee.

In 1801 the Americans bought the Louisiana Territory from the French (and Napoleon) for $15 million. The French needed the money to fight the British. With the purchase, the Americans extended to the crest of the Rocky Mountains.

1810 - John Stephen Lancaster was born in Shelby County, Kentucky.

During the early 1800's, the Ellis families began their movement to Kentucky. In 1792, Kentucky became the fifteenth state; the state, at one time, was Fincastle County within the State of Virginia. The county was created in 1772, but the residents did not receive the services and protection it desired from Virginia so they began an effort for their own statehood. Most of the Ellis family settled in Shelby and Oldham Counties. Both of these counties are agricultural in nature; the topography consists of beautiful rolling hills. Shelby County was created in 1792 from Jefferson County while Oldham County was created in 1824 from portions of Henry, Jefferson, and Shelby Counties. Jefferson County was created in 1780.

WESTWARD TO THE MIDCOUNTRY: 1812 - 1860

1812 - Benjamin Wells Junior married Thankful Redfield in Gorham, New York.
1812 - On September 14, 1812 Ezra Redfield died in Manchester, New York.
1815 - James Neal married Jane Kinkade in Jefferson County, Kentucky.
1816 - John Truax was born on in Schoharie County, New York.
1819 - Mary Elizabeth Neal was born.

In June of 1812, the Americans declared war on the British. Just two days earlier and unknown to the Americans, Parliament voted to respect American neutrality. While President Madison could have had peace, he was re-elected on the promise to proceed with the war. The New England states were opposed to the war since they depended on trade with England. During the summer of 1812 there were battles in Michigan. The United States lost Fort Michilimacknac and Fort Detroit.

1825 - William-2 Torbron married Lucy Gage in New York state.1828
1825 - Benjamin Wells Senior died in Hopewell, New York.
1829 - Andrew Torbron moved to Monroe County, New York.

On January 22, 1813, the British defeated a U.S. force on the Raisin River at Frenchtown near present-day Toledo. Later in 1813 the British left Fort Detroit.

In June of 1814, the British attacked Washington, DC. On December 24, 1814, the Treaty of Ghent ended the war. As a result of peace, the development of the U.S. was not affected by Old World politics.

1830 - Sally Ellis died.
1831 - Andrew Torbron died in Monroe County, New York.
1832 - Hannah Hare moved to Lenawee County, Michigan.
1834 - William-2 Torbron moved to Michigan.
1836 - Robert Nimrod Ellis was born in Oldham County, Kentucky.
1837 - John S. Lancaster married Mary Elizabeth Neal.
1837 - John Truax married Ann Wells on June 5, 1837 in Cohocton, New York.
1838 - Richard Torbron was born in Lenawee County, Michigan, near the town of Adrian.

Schoharie County, New York, where the Truax family originated, was created from Albany and Otsego Counties in 1795.

During the first half of the 1800's there were many changes is the U.S., part of them due to the world-wide Industrial Revolution. In 1807 Robert Fulton's steamship made a round trip from New York City to Albany. In the U.S., manufacturing increased because of the War of 1812 when trade goods could not obtained and had to be produced in the U.S. The northeastern states became the center for this new manufacturing focus.

In the early 1820's, the U.S. had a fascination with Greece: they wanted to send a representative to Athens (at this time Greece was under Turkish rule). Classic colonnades were added to homes, Greek grammar was taught, and towns were named after Greek heros (i.e. Ypsilanti in Michigan).

1840 - Robert Lancaster died.
1841 - Mary Elizabeth Lancaster was born in Kentucky.
1844 - Hannah Hare died in Lenawee County, Michigan.
1844 - Solomon Gage died on May 17, 1844 in Lenawee County, Michigan.
1846 - Anna Wells died on January 9, 1846 in Hopewell, New York.

1851 - John S. Lancaster died in Shelby County, Kentucky.
1852 - Mary E. (Jennie) Truax was born in Canandaigua, New York.
1853 - John Truax and Benjamin Wells Junior moved to Hillsdale County, Michigan.
1853 - Anna Wells was born in 1821 in Hopewell, New York.

The Erie Canal became the principal gateway to the west in 1825 and opened the Northwest Territory. Canals and railroad construction brought in cheap labor - between 1830 and 1840 there were 600,000 immigrants: 1/3 Irish and 1/4 German. Until 1825, most of the pioneers into the Northwest Territory were adventurous youths from New York. By the 1830's, there were steamed powered locomotives; this helped in the expansion of the railroads by 1840. Between 1820 and 1850 slavery became entrenched in the south. In the 1830's and 1840's a time of reform ensued, particularly with regard to the abolition of slavery. The northeastern states sought tariffs to protect their industries while the south wanted less due to their export of cotton and import of manufactured goods.

During the early 1830's the Torbrons moved west to Lenawee County, Michigan. Although Michigan became a state in 1837, it began as a territory in 1805. Lenawee County became its own county in 1826; it was part of Monroe County before this time. By 1838, Adrian became the county seat after successfully using horse drawn cars on a rail line between Adrian and Toledo. The Wells family moved to adjacent Hillsdale County, which was established in 1835 from unorganized lands. Wayne County was established in 1796; it is in this county that subsequent family members lived - the Torbrons, Selecks, and Ristics. The journey from New York to Lenawee County was difficult and usually used the Erie Canal and Lake Erie to Detroit. From Detroit, ox teams were used over the rough road which traversed heavily timbered land.

Richard Torbron was the first known Torbron to begin work with the railroads when he reached working age. In the late 1840's there was hostility towards the railroads in Michigan. Some of this was due to religious opposition (going too fast with the dragons of hell), but most was due to farmers objecting to their livestock being killed by trains. At a time when there were scarcely two hundred miles of railroad in the eastern United States, the Erie and Kalamazoo was the first railroad west of Albany, New York.

Travel on the Erie and Kalamazoo was hazardous. Engineers were not to exceed ten miles per hour because snakeheads, the ends of iron rails that worked themselves loose, sometimes flew up through the cars' bottoms endangering the passengers. If the train exceeded fifteen miles per hour on a curve, passengers might find themselves tipped over in a ditch. When the locomotive ran out of wood or water, the passengers scoured the countryside for both. At other times riders had to push the train up hills. If there were no interruptions, the round trip between Toledo and Adrian took one day. Today, it takes less than an hour and a half.

After the 1840's, New Englanders who a generation before had settled New York and Ohio, pressed on to Indiana and Illinois. A favorite objective for Yankee settlement was southern Michigan, a rolling country of oak openings, where stately trees stood well-spaced as in a gentleman's park. As a popular song of the period put it:

> Come all ye Yankee farmers who wish to change your lot,
> Who've spunk enough to travel beyond your native spot,
> And leave behind the village where Pa and Ma do stay,
> Come follow me and settle in Michigania.-
> Yea, yea, yea, in Michigania.

There was another western movement into the Mexican territories of New Mexico, Texas, and the Pacific Coast of California and Oregon. For a while Mexico allowed Anglo-Americans into Texas under certain conditions of loyalty. However, by 1830, the Anglos outnumbered the Mexicans and Mexico began to prohibit immigration.

In 1836 the Texans defeated Santa Anna's army and declared independence. They wanted to enter the Union; however, they were not admitted because there would be an imbalance between free and slave states in Congress. On March 3, 1837 the U.S. recognized Texas as the Lone Star Republic.

Eventually President Polk wanted to annex Texas and purchase New Mexico and California. These actions would be part of the U.S. manifest destiny to reach from sea to sea. When his offer was rebuffed, Polk engineered a war with Mexico. It lasted from 1846 to 1848.

In 1849 gold was discovered in California. The Compromise of 1850 allowed California to enter the Union as a free state and for Utah and New Mexico to become slave states. There were efforts to ensure the balance of free and slave states did not change.

The period between 1849 and 1857 was one of industrial development. The railroads supplemented the canals as the freight carrier and also opened the prairies to settlement. In 1850 the railroads had hardly penetrated the middle west; however, by 1860 their network increased by 10 fold and covered the middle west.

CIVIL WAR: 1860 - 1865

1861 - Joshua Ellis died in Oldham County, Kentucky.

1861 - John Truax enlisted in the Michigan Volunteers on January 1, 1862.

In 1861, the Confederate States of America was created. By April 12, 1861, Fort Sumter, South Carolina was attacked. On April 15, 1861, Lincoln called out the militia.

1861 - On March 3, 1862 Richard Torbron enlisted in the Michigan 16th Infantry. By December of 1862 he was in Stone River, Tennessee.

1863 - Robert N. Ellis married Mary Elizabeth Lancaster in Shelby County, Kentucky.

1864 - John Truax re-enlisted in the army on March 31, 1864.

1865 - Richard Torbron was discharged from the army on March 3, 1865 at Lookout Mountain, Tennessee.

Kentucky was a border slave state which voted not to secede from the Union. At the same time, she would not provide soldiers for the war. Virginia did secede from the Union.

In the Spring of 1864, Sherman began his march through Georgia and reached Atlanta in September and Savannah in December. He then began a march north towards Virginia. On April 9, 1865, Lee surrendered his forces at Appomattox, Virginia. Civil War casualties totaled 620,000 men, of which 360,000 were Union soldiers. On April 15, 1865, President Lincoln was assassinated in Washington, D.C.

MORE WESTWARD MOVEMENT: 1865 - 1914

1867 - James Neal died in Shelby County, Kentucky.

1868 - Benjamin Wells Junior died in Allen Michigan.

1870 - Lucy Torbron died in Dover, Michigan.

1870 - Richard Torbron married Mary E. Truax on October 18, 1870.

1872 - Orin Fred Torbron was born in Adrian, Michigan.

1873 - Hercules Ellis Junior died in Oldham County, Kentucky.

1874 - William-2 Torbron died on September 17, 1874.

1875 - Effie Mae Ellis was born on July 27, 1875 in Shelby County, Kentucky.

1878 - On September 17, 1878 Mary Elizabeth (Neal) Lancaster died.

1879 - Richard Torbron moved to Marshall, Texas in 1879.

1880 - Robert N. Ellis was living in Louisville, Kentucky.

1881 - Jacob Selewski arrived in the U.S. Julia Schester, his wife to be, arrived earlier in 1865.

1881 - John Truax died in Hillsdale, Michigan.

1889 - Richard Torbron moved to Cleburne, Texas.

Initially the Great Plains were thought to be worthless because of their dryness. By the 1850's, it was discovered that these lands were good for grazing and farming. However, they had been set aside for the Indians in previous years.

In 1858 the problems between settlers and the Indians increased, particularly when prospectors found gold in Colorado.

The Homestead Act was passed in 1862. It allowed American citizens to obtain 160 acres of land free if certain conditions were met.

In 1864 the first Pullman sleeping car was built. By 1864 battles between the Indians and settlers intensified. In 1869 the railroad air brakes were invented and added to the safety of the railroads. By 1870 the railroads used a standard gauge for their tracks.

The Torbron and Ellis families were involved in working for the railroads. Plans for a transcontinental railroad began before the Civil War. Construction started in 1863 and was completed on May 10, 1869 at Promontory Utah. Only 35,000 miles of track existed at this time. By 1900, the mileage increased to 193,000.

In 1873, the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway was founded by businessmen at Galveston and in 1881 tracks reached central and north Texas. Cleburne's first railroad reached town when the 22 mile stretch was completed between Kopperl and Cleburne on October 21, 1881. A joyous, shouting crowd of 1000 persons 1895 - On July 6, 1895 Orin Torbron married Effie Mae Ellis in Cleburne, Texas.

1897 - Anna Truax died on February 28, 1897 in Cleburne, Texas.
1898 - On May 25, 1898 Jack Truitt Torbron was born in Cleburne, Texas.

1902 - Marie Eleanor Seleck was born
1904 - Richard Torbron left Jennie Torbron for New Orleans, Louisiana.

1910 - Orin F. Torbron was living in Belleville, Texas.
1911 - On November 2, 1911 Robert N. Ellis died in Cleburne, Texas.
1912 - Richard Torbron died in New Orleans, Louisiana.

Lenawee County, MI, Railroad Office

met the first train which rolled into Cleburne, puffing forth its black smoke, whistle blowing and bell ringing.

December 8, 1881, the track was completed between Cleburne and Fort Worth, providing faster, direct mail service to Cleburne.

The first depot, a small wooden structure, was south of the present one. In 1894, a brick depot was constructed, and it is said that Cleburne had the finest depot on the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe line in Texas.

August 1, 1882 the long desired Dallas to Cleburne line was completed by the Chicago-Texas-Mexico-Central Railway Company. It opened with a $1.00 round trip excursion to Dallas, which was eagerly accepted by many Johnson County residents. This line was later sold to Santa Fe.

Where the stage coach fare had been ten cents a mile, the railroad charged only five. Freight was 20 cents per mile on the stage which covered a distance of 20 miles per day, but by rail the freight rate was cut in half and the speed of transportation greatly increased.

Railway trains were derailed for many reasons, but the most unusual was in 1893 when a Santa Fe freight was struck by a cyclone four miles south of Gainesville. Fifteen cars were blown off the track. Brakeman S. A. Gunn of Cleburne was killed and Roadmaster Maples of Cleburne seriously injured, as well as others less seriously hurt.

An attempted robbery of a north bound train occurred on February 3, 1895 in Johnson County. The train usually stopped at Big Hickory water tank, but on this particular day it didn't. Twelve or fifteen shots were fired by the angry, would-be bandits because the train failed to stop at the intended hold-up spot.

In the 1870's there were cattle drives from Texas to rail heads in Kansas and Missouri. These drives lasted until the early 1880's.

In 1875 Custer made his famous last stand against a band of Indians.

The 1877 Desert Land Act provided 640 acres for Americans at the price of $1.25 per acre. In the summer of 1877 there was a bitter railroad strike. It resulted from a cut in wages and the blacklisting of union members.

Until the 1880's the immigration pattern consisted of people from Germany, Great Britain, and Ireland. They were mostly farmers and settled in the Midwest and Great Plains. After the 1880's the immigration pattern changed to southern Europeans: Greeks, Polish, Catholics, and Jews. Beginning as early as 1848, there was a movement of people from West Prussia to the U.S., particularly to Detroit. Major ports of departure for emigrants from the Poland area were Bremer and Hamburg. Most of these people were Catholics, and they settled close to St. Casimer and St. Alburtus Catholic Churches in Detroit. Some of the people, including Jacob and Julie Ann Selewski, spoke a Kashub dialect.

Kashub is a Polish dialect from the area west of West Prussia. From 1795 to 1918, the time when the Selewski and Schester families immigrated, there was no legal country called Poland. The legal name of Germany did not come about until after the Unification from 1866 to 1914 with the title, German Empire, but the land area was Prussia.

The Polish Corridor refers to the territory between East Prussia and Pomerania. Annexed by Prussia in the second partition of Poland in 1793, the area was later awarded to Poland by the Treaty of Versailles in 1919. This gave the newly created Polish state access to the sea.

The culture of the 17th and 18th centuries Poland radiated from the Jesuit School. It was both Latin and Polish. In the north and west, settlements of German Catholics and Protestants, burghers and peasants, spanned the Commonwealth's borders.

Along the Baltic coast, to the west and northwest of Danzig, lived yet another Slavic population. Catholic peasants, workers, and fishermen heavily influenced by the German rural and urban upper classes. These were the Kashubians: descendants of the slavic Pomeranians, speaking a tongue closely related to Polish. They were separated from the Polish heartland by the mixed-nationality zone in the Vistula delta, and led an insular, traditional life untouched by politics before the late 19th century.

The Polish settlements in East Prussia and Silesia and the Kashubian lands on the Baltic represented passive zones of the nationality frontier in the 18th and most of the 19th century. The vital center lay in West Prussia and Great Poland.

The first electric power plant was built in New York in 1882. Railroad standard time was implemented in 1883. Congress adopted standard time in 1918; until this date each town had its own time. By 1889 you could travel coast to coast without changing trains.

The last Indian battle was fought at Wounded Knee, South Dakota in 1890.

The immigration center on Ellis Island was opened in 1892.

In 1894 the Pullman strike eventually involved all the railroads.

In 1913 Henry Ford made mass production of automobiles possible through the use of assembly lines.

WORLD WAR I, DEPRESSION, AND WORLD WAR II: 1914-1945

1917 - On May 9, 1917 Jack Torbron enlisted in the army in Gainsville, Texas.
1919 - Jack Torbron was discharged from the army on August 4, 1919 at Camp Pike, Arkansas.

On June 12, 1914, Archduke Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated in Sarajevo, Bosnia (Yugoslavia) by a Slavic nationalist who wanted union with the Serbians. Soon Europe was engaged in a war covering the continent. The war developed into a stalemate and trench warfare.

1921 - Jack Torbron married Marie Seleck on November 19, 1921 in Detroit, Michigan.
1921 - Peter Ristic arrived in the U.S. at Ellis Island during this year; his first destination was Philadelphia, but ultimately he would move to Detroit.

The passenger ship, Lusitania, was sunk by a German submarine on May 7, 1915 off the Irish coast. Shortly thereafter the Germans made the Sussex Pledge which provided that merchant ships would be warned before being fired upon.

1922 - Mary E. Ellis died on January 21, 1922 in Cleburne, Texas.
1922 - On December 15, 1922 Dorothy Torbron was born in Detroit, Michigan.
1922 - Orin F. Torbron was living in Ardmore, Oklahoma in 1922.
1922 - Anna (Douyakis) Zografos left Greece for Toronto, Canada where she married Peter Ristic.

By February 1, 1917, the Germans began unrestricted use of their submarines in torpedoing ships. On March 1, 1917, the Zimmermann Note to Mexico was intercepted; it wanted Mexico to join Germany. In return Germany would help restore New Mexico, Texas, and Arizona to Mexico. On April 6, 1917 Congress declared war on Germany. By June of 1917, the first American troops arrived in Paris.

In 1919 the Treaty of Versailles was signed. In the U.S. prices increased substantially and there were over 3,000 strikes during the year. Between 1920 and 1930 several hundred thousand foreign born people lived in Michigan.

1932 - Jack Torbron II was born on June 17, 1932 in Detroit, Michigan.
1932 - Jennie Torbron died on November 12, 1932 in Cleburne, Texas.
1932 - Orin F. Torbron was living on Vashon Island, Washington in 1932.

In 1925 the first motel, the Motel Inn, opened in San Luis Obispo, California.

At the end of the 1920's 25% of the population were farmers (compared to 42% in 1900). Farm prices dropped as city dwellers consumed less food. During this time more Americans began to speculate in stocks.

On October 24, 1929, Black Thursday, the stock market lost a great deal of its value. Banks bought a lot of stock to prop up the stock market. Soon the banks became vulnerable and people made a run on them.

During the Depression, which lasted until 1941, children stayed with their parents longer since they could not afford to move out on their own. The 1930's also saw a drought in the Great Plains and the beginning of the Dust Bowl days.

During the winter of 1932 hungry people demonstrated in several cities, including Detroit. Unemployed auto workers smashed cars to protest conditions.

On March 4, 1933, Franklin D. Roosevelt was sworn in as President. He initiated public work projects, bank reforms, and social security.

CALIFORNIA HERE WE COME: 1945 - 1992

1940 - Karen I. Torbron was born on December 13, 1940 in Detroit, Michigan.

1941 - Dorothy Torbron married Harry Flanagan on January 14, 1941.

1941 - On August 28, Harry Thomas Flanagan was born in Detroit, Michigan.

1941 - During the war Harry Flanagan served in the Navy on a Merchant Marine ship.

1946 - The Torbron family moved from Detroit, Michigan to Santa Maria, California.

1946 - Jack and Marie Torbron bought the Mission Motel in Santa Maria, California.

1947 - Kathleen Lynn Flanagan was born in Detroit, Michigan on May 26, 1947.

1949 - On April 25, 1949 Timothy Patrick Flanagan was born in Detroit, Michigan.

1949 - Orin F. Torbron died on December 3, 1949 in Santa Maria, California.

1952 - Jack Torbron II married Barbara Leyva on August 8, 1952 in San Luis Obispo, California.

1953 - On January 22, 1953 Jack-3 Torbron was born in San Luis Obispo, California.

1955 - Michael E. Torbron was born on March 6, 1955 in San Luis Obispo, California.

1955 - On July 6, 1955 Effie Torbron died in Santa Maria, California.

1956 - On October 13, 1956 Russell L Torbron was born in Pasadena, California.

1959 - On May 20, 1959 David A. Torbron was born in Los Angeles, California.

1961 - Kenneth W. Torbron was born on March 27, 1961 in Los Angeles, California.

1961 - On September 2, 1961 Karen Torbron married Raymond P. Ristic in Santa Maria, California.

On December 7, 1941, the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, Hawaii beginning the American involvement in World War II.

From 1942 until 1945, the war was fought on 2 fronts - one in the Pacific Ocean against Japan and one in Europe and North Africa against Germany.
On May 7, 1945, the Germans surrendered. On August 14, 1945 Japan surrendered, thus ending the war.

On June 25, 1950, North Korean attacked South Korean. In a matter of days U.S. troops were involved in the war.

On July 27, 1953, an armistice was signed at Panmunjon, Korean.

In 1957 the Russians launched the Sputnick satellite.

On October 16, 1962 the Cuban missile crisis began.

1962 - On August 11, 1962, twins, Deborah A. and Denise M. Ristic were born in Los Angeles, California.

1964 - Brook A. Torbron was born on April 19, 1964 in Los Angeles, California.

1968 - On March 19, 1968 Michael P. Ristic was born in Montebello, California.

1972 - Jack T. Torbron died on February 11, 1972 in Santa Maria, California.

1989 - Marie Torbron moved to West Covina, California on March 19, 1989.

1991 - John Spuhler served in the U.S. Army during the Persian Gulf conflict.

On August 4, 1964, a North Viet Nam vessel supposedly attacked a U.S. destroyer in the Gulf of Tonkin.

On July 16, 1969, the first astronauts landed on the moon.

In 1973, U.S. involvement ended in Viet Nam. It is also during the early part of the year that the Watergate affair begins to unfold. Also, the Arab oil embargo took place during 1973.

In 1983, the U.S. invaded Grenada in the Caribbean.

On August 2, 1990, Iraq attacked Kuwaite.
On January 1, 1991, the U.S. and its allies begin air attacks over Iraq. On February 23rd the ground attack begins. It ended 100 hours later.

CHAPTER 29

Personal Name Index

The letters and numbers separated by a dash and enclosed in parentheses are codes and are family location keys for the individual histories in Section Three. The numbers and/or letters after the semicolon indicate the family chart location in Section Two if a number or Allied Families in Section Five if a letter. In the majority of cases, women are listed by their maiden names.
